

The Site Selectors Guild

2020 – 2021 Annual Report

Greetings!

Wow, what a year! This pandemic touched all of us in so many ways. As it relates to the Site Selectors Guild, it forced us to do a much-needed pivot in our business model, and as a result, it made us a much stronger organization. The Guild is a business, and I have had the honor of serving as the chair of the board of directors for this business since March of 2020. As one of the original founders of the Guild, I have a deep passion to ensure its success and for us to provide valuable content to our two customer streams: companies that need guidance in a location search, and economic development organizations that benefit from our knowledge and counsel.

In March of 2020 shortly after the pandemic lockdown, the Guild created a multi-year business plan titled Guild Forward. The plan focused on three pillars that would allow for the growth and sustainability of the Guild: diversifying our product offerings; creating and owning our content; and continuous process improvement so that we can be the very best in delivering our products and services. I am thrilled to say that we have far exceeded what we hoped to accomplish.

In the past, our primary touchpoints with the economic development community were two conferences a year. As we looked to diversify and connect more with economic development organizations (EDOs), we have supplemented this with a slew of new virtual events such as our popular webinar series, which offers fresh content for our audience; the very popular Table Talk, which we added as a virtual product; and our new, size-limited and popular in-person event, One Day One Sector Summit.

The Guild also unveiled a new EDO engagement strategy called the Guild Partner program. This unique engagement outreach has garnered the participation of more than 80 EDOs (as of April 30, 2021) of all sizes from throughout the globe. You will be hearing much more about this exciting initiative later in 2021 and into 2022 as it grows to our limit of 100 EDO partners.

Within our “own the content pillar,” stay tuned to hear more about our efforts to create a site readiness designation program.

Professional standards are very important to us. You will also hear more as we further develop a new site location adviser professional designation, much like you would see for other professions that have a professional designation, e.g. CPA, SIOR, CEcD. This is important as we further enhance the professional standards of our site selection profession.

In 2010 with the founding of the Guild, we had 17 members. Today we have 55. Our newest class of seven members is listed on page 10. We have also ramped up our marketing and PR efforts around the Guild's thought leadership and have been featured over the past year in publications ranging from The New York Times and The Financial Times to top business journals across the country – yielding $1.4 million in advertising equivalency. Our brand recognition is the best it has ever been as a result of these media impressions.

In short, the state of the Guild could not be better. There are many people to thank for this reality: the officers and my go-to team of Chris Lloyd, vice chair; John Sisson, treasurer; and Gregg Wassmansdorf, secretary. They have all worked tirelessly to advance the mission of the Guild. Our task forces and committee chairs (found on page 9) have all worked diligently to achieve the goals and objectives outlined in our business plan. And our board of directors and board advisors, found on page 8, focused strategically to make sure we could effectively grow the Guild. Our vendor partners worked brilliantly to execute our strategy. They include our conference manager, the Angela Rogers Group; our marketing and public relations firm, DCI; our accounting firm, the Hobbs Group; and our attorneys, Vedder-Price LLP.

Lastly, a great shout out to my friend, our president and CEO Rick Weddle, who helped drive this train skillfully, tactfully and with class. Rick is retiring from the Guild later in 2021 and we will miss him.

The Guild is poised to continue its upward trajectory. We very much appreciate the support of our sponsors, economic development partners and friends of the Guild. We couldn't succeed without you!

Onward and all the best,

Jay A. Garner, CEcD
